Letter from the President & Guests

*"Your attitude, not your aptitude, will determine your altitude."
~ Zig Ziglar*

*This issue, we hear from

Who loves Spring weather?! I for one enjoy this time of year – the promise of warmer weather, Easter, daylight in the evenings and more time spent outside.

Spring also brings the beginning of shows and events! We started out with a show in Monroeville, have been to regional & national events since then, are planning for Fire Expo in Harrisburg, and will be finalizing an upcoming Pierce Road Rally in early July. Watch for more details regarding Fire Expo and the Road Rally on our social media outlets.

Inside this newsletter edition features a few specialty services available – focusing on graphics and upfit. Both segments began over two years ago and are located in a facility less than a mile from our main headquarters in Bird in Hand. Check out the story inside, and our website for before and after photos of completed projects.

Speaking of the website – the time was overdue to revamp the GLICK Fire Equipment website for improved navigation for both laptop and mobile devices, in addition to focusing on better photos and increased search capabilities. We are adding additional photos each week, especially for before and after projects in the body shop and graphics & upfit departments.

The past month or two has allowed for some time to interact with customers – meetings, events, final inspections, and at times a simple conversation at the shop during a service or parts visit. We all know being a first responder takes a variety of attributes. One, which is underrated at times, is the ability to adapt and be resilient. This has been quite evident in many ways recently, whether it's the patience shown to us when taking that service or parts call explaining there is a delay, or even traveling for a final inspection and you are met with airline delays. All things that are out of your control but we are appreciative of the way you confidently and respectfully handle these events.

We at GLICK are grateful for each and every one of you, our customers, vendor partners, and friends. Have a wonderful Summer.

Be safe and be kind.

IT'S HEATING UP!

Welcome Spring! In addition to enjoying warmer weather, Spring is also a crucial time to ensure your equipment is in optimal condition for the upcoming months.

Here are some things you can do to keep your apparatus in top shape!

TIRE PRESSURE CHECK

Even if you properly inflate your vehicle's tires to the recommended PSI range, tire pressure is significantly affected by weather, with warmer temperatures causing an increase. For every 10°F change in temperature, tire pressure can fluctuate by about 1 PSI.

Impact on truck tires can cause overinflation which can also lead to uneven tire wear. Compromised traction escalates the risk of blowouts, especially when driving on hot surfaces or at high speeds.

It's essential to regularly check and adjust tire pressure to the vehicle manufacturer's recommended PSI range. Monitor tire pressure in the cooler morning or evening hours to get a more accurate reading. By proactively administering tire maintenance during the sweltering summer heat, you can help ensure a safer vehicle for your next emergency call.

Here are signs of overinflated tires in summer:

- Your treads are wearing unevenly. If the center of your tires' tread is wearing faster than the edges, there's a good chance that they are over-inflated.
- Your Tire Pressure Monitor System comes on after you've been driving for 15-20 minutes. If your tire pressure is too high before you drive, it can only increase with friction from the road. If your TPMS light illuminates while your car is in operation, you'll need to check your tire pressure as soon as possible.

AIR CONDITIONING UNITS

Your department should have the A/C unit on your apparatus checked and recharged (if needed) regularly. Don't wait for those hot days to come and realize that your A/C unit can't keep up!

We have a multi-point inspection of the entire system to ensure it is running at its best.

THE COMPRESSOR

We check to ensure the proper oil and the correct amount are in your air conditioning system. Too much heat and incorrect or low oil will cause your compressor to give out early. No matter who the manufacturer of your fire apparatus, we will determine the correct type of oil and ensure the right amount is present.

THE EVAPORATOR

You may have been told that evaporators will never need to be cleaned. The truth is, the evaporator can still be clogged with dirt, lint and other foreign matter. Any foreign matter can cling to the cooling fins and reduce air flow. The evaporator can also be a haven for mold and bacteria. If you have an unpleasant smell when you turn on the A/C the chances are it's time for some maintenance. Of course, an evaporator filter can help cut down on contaminants. Consider having one installed if a filter is not already present.

THE CONDENSER

The condenser is another location that may become clogged by debris and dirt. A routine visual inspection of the condenser fans will reveal any problems. If the condenser fans are on top of the apparatus, branches and leaves may get lodged in the fan blades. If the air conditioner condenser is located in the engine housing, road debris may reduce or restrict fan movement. Usually a quick cleaning of these parts can restore any reduced performance caused by the debris.

LEAKS

Typically, an air conditioning system that does not cool well is a symptom of a leak somewhere in the system. A Glick Service Technician will utilize gauges to check pressure levels across the system. If there is a leak, we will be able to pinpoint where the leak is happening.

Of course, you can do a quick check yourself. Inspect the fittings, the condenser, compressor hose fittings, and shaft seal connected to the air conditioning system on your fire truck. Any evidence of refrigerant oil is a possible leak. If you suspect a possible leak, give us a call to explore your options.
